A Man of Many Faces

11 0 1

Chapter 1 by GodFather

5:54 AM EET, February 23, 2016, Deir ez-Zor, Syria. Recep Tayyip Erdoğan, president of Turkey, stays at First Cham Palace Hotel on a mission to buy cheap oil from Islamic State in hopes of being able to sell it for higher prices throughout Europe. Little does he know about plot of his assassination which would lead to a third World War. A man waits patiently on the roof of a building on Main Street, Deir ez-zor about 1.3km away with his M91A2 sniper rifle. Before going on mission, he made sure that he took every measure in order to bring successful news back to his group. He waits with only the sound of cars driving by to accompany him. He waits for the President to leave his slumber. He waits as milliseconds turn into seconds. Seconds start to turn into minutes and those minutes turn into hours. He watches a window like a hawk, ready to strike. He is getting impatient as he has been waiting for one hour, thirty-two minutes, twenty-eight seconds, and 4 milliseconds in which he had been able to count with ease as his focus grew. The opportunity finally arises as Erdoğan gets finished getting dressed and goes to sit next to one of the Secret Service agents protecting him in one of the chairs sitting next to the window of the hotel room. The agent scouts the area and sees a flash from the scope. He quickly gets in position to plunge toward the President to push him out of the way but it is too late. With a loud boom, the headless corpse of the Turkish President lay still across the floor of the hotel room with bits of his head blown across the room. A panic causes within the room as the assassin makes a
